WHO WE ARE:

The American Society of Interior Designers Minnesota Chapter (ASID MN) is a nonprofit professional society representing the interests of interior designers and the interior design community; a community driven by a common love of design; a community committed to the belief that interior design, as a service to people, is a powerful, multi-faceted profession that can positively change people's lives. Through education, sharing, advocacy, community building and outreach, ASID strives to advance the interior design profession and—in the process—demonstrate and celebrate the power of design to positively change people's lives.

With more than 30,000 members, ASID establishes a common identity for professionals and businesses in the field of interior design. The expansive network includes 48 chapters throughout the United States and Canada, including a Minnesota office located in Minneapolis at International Market Square.

FEATURED PROJECT

DAVID HEIDE DESIGN STUDIO

Nearly every room in this home was redefined and reconstructed without necessitating major changes to the structure, thanks to a collaboration between the homeowner and full-service architecture and interior design firm David Heide Design Studio.

Clever space planning and creative design came together in perfect contemporary harmony when sight lines were reconfigured, a hallway was eliminated, and once very closed-off spaces—the kitchen, dining room, living room, and sitting room—were reconstructed into an open, airy, flowing space. The focal point, a beautiful and unique circular hearth, separates the quadrants into conversation, cooking, dining, and

TV. Modulations in ceiling elevation also help to creatively distinguish the separate spaces.

The master bedroom, once accessible through the kitchen, is now a private space separated from the common living area by a study. (You could previously enter the master bedroom through the kitchen, see the garage from the bedroom, and get to the hot tub—mainly used by the homeowner's teenage son and his friends—through the bedroom).

The modern, updated interior is filled with natural sunlight, promotes interaction, feels more spacious and welcoming, and is perfect for entertaining friends and family—exactly what the homeowners were hoping to achieve.
